VALUE BEYOND PRICE

Like many shoppers, I was first attracted to Kirkland Signature products for the obvious reason...the significant price savings compared to many major national brands. But after all these years (I've been a Costco member since 1984!), I've come to realize the value goes well beyond price.

What has really stood out to me over time is Costco's consistent commitment to quality. In many cases, particularly with supplements and over-the-counter remedies, Kirkland products are manufactured in the USA, which is something I've personally come to appreciate.

For example, many familiar household names are produced all over the world. Take Bayer aspirin for example which is a trusted and well-known brand which is often manufactured in Spain. Spain is a beautiful country, but when it comes to medicines, I simply prefer products made in the United States when possible.

And this certainly isn't about picking on Bayer. When I look at many major brands, I see products sourced from all across the globe. That's just the reality of today's marketplace.

What I value about Kirkland Signature is the balance of quality, consistency, and savings. After more than 30 years of shopping at Costco, Kirkland continues to feel like one of the smartest choices I make.
